

Ikanogroup.com – Cookie usage policy

Last modified: 2016-09-07

Our website uses cookies to help you in your interactions with our site and enhance your user experience. By using our website you agree to our Cookie Usage Policy.

What is a cookie?

Cookies are small files placed on your computer's hard drive, or in your browser memory, when you visit Ikano Group's website. It helps us speed things up for you when you come back. It tells us what parts of the site you visit, what you like and what is most relevant to you. Our cookies do not store any personal or confidential information about you and are used for analysis only.

To make sure you get the best from our website, we advise that users keep cookies active on their machine whilst visiting our website.

Accepting cookies?

Accepting cookies means that you permit communication between your computer and our website. This has no negative impact on your security or your connection to us.

Don't want to use cookies anymore?

If you do not accept the use of cookies, you can turn them off through your browser's security settings. However, this may limit our sites functionality.

Session cookies

Cookies which last only for the duration of your visit and no personal data is collected. These simply enable us to identify that the same person is moving from page to page. We store and collect a unique ID to track your session from page to page via session cookie.

Persistent cookies

There are also certain cookies that are persistent, meaning that they last beyond your session enabling an enhanced user experience when you return to the site. Most browsers automatically accept cookies and you should be able to accept, delete or reject them if you wish by adjusting the settings on your browser.

Third party cookies

We also use third-party cookies to collect statistics about our visitors. These cookies do not save any private information about you, and are only used to give us a better understanding of how visitors use our website.